(NASDAQ: SPAR) ("Spartan" or the "Company"), the North American leader in specialty vehicle manufacturing and assembly for the commercial and retail vehicle industries (including last mile delivery, specialty vehicles, commercial vehicle assembly, and vocation-specific upfit segments), as well as for the emergency response and recreational vehicle markets, today announced the appointment of Andrew Anderson as Chief Information Officer, effective today. In this role, Anderson is responsible for direct oversight of the Infrastructure, Security, Applications, Development, and User Support functions across the enterprise. He will report directly to Daryl Adams, President and Chief Executive Officer.

Anderson joins Spartan from Stant Corporation, where, as CIO, he was charged with stabilizing business systems, implementing business-critical cloud-based technology stacks to enable engineering, sales, finance, and manufacturing efficiencies while leading a systems consolidation effort that allowed the company to invest in new solutions. Prior to Stant, Anderson served in multiple global technology senior leadership positions at Visteon, where he led the development and launch of a broad portfolio of strategic applications, oversaw acquisitions and divestitures and streamlined the organization's application portfolio leading to significant cost savings and efficiency gains. Prior to Visteon, Anderson worked in multiple business roles including program management, purchasing and supply chain at Ford Motor Company.

"All areas of mobility, including specialty vehicle manufacturing, are undergoing rapid technology change and Andy's deep experience and leadership in managing IT business processes across various sectors will be a key advantage for Spartan," said Daryl Adams, President and Chief Executive Officer.
